DELIBERATING IN CASE OF S. INSULL, WANTED IN U. S.

Judges In Greece Reported Divided in Casting of Votes

DISCUSS FINDINGS

Three to Two Verdict Will Be Binding; No Avenue of Appeal

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 31—Reported divided two to two with the deciding vote in the presiding Justice, judges of the Greek Court of Appeals today deliberated their verdict in the case of Samuel Insull, wanted in the United States on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy. The five distinguished jurists discussed their individual findings in the case from 11:15 a. m. until 1 p. m. at which time they adjourned for lunch. They will meet again at 3:30 p. m.

The members of the Court followed the ancient Greek procedure in studying the minutes of the case individually for three days before convening to agree upon a verdict. Defense and prosecution closed their case Friday, and the Jurists were charged by Judge Tanegzrakis, Court President, to retire to their private homes and chambers to meditate upon the merits of the allegations brought by the United States Government against Insull.

A three to two verdict, either for Insull's extradition or against it, will be binding and there is no avenue of appeal. Despite the even division at the luncheon adjournment, it was considered possible that the second joint session of the Court this afternoon may result in a unanimous result in the division, one way or the other.

Shoes Not On Wrong Feet; In Wrong Car

By "The Stroller"
A man who gives his address as Garden street, feeling quite wealthy a few nights ago, purchased a $7 pair of shoes that fit himself, and walking out of the local shoe store presented them to a stranger.

You want the facts, you say?

Well, here they are:

The shoes were purchased and for the use of the man who paid the bill. But the presentation happened "this-a-way." The buyer had an engagement to meet friends on Mill street. Upon emerging from the shoe store, he espied the car of the friends, or thought he did. Placing his newly-acquired foot-wear in the automobile, he proceeded to walk down Mill street in search of the party. Soon he located the friends and all proceeded to the machine, which proved to be a different one than the Garden street man thought. A search of the vicinity for the car in which the shoes were parked was futile. Both car and shoes had disappeared.

NEARLY ALL EUROPE TIED BY NON-AGGRESSION

Epidemic of Treaty-Making Breaks Out Throughout Europe

IN MANY COUNTRIES

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

GENEVA, Oct. 31—(INS)—An epidemic of treaty-making has broken out in Europe. Every country has become suspicious of its neighbors and is trying to tie them down with parchment and sealing-wax.

There is by now a treaty of non-aggression for most frontiers, a Danube Federation has been in the making for months, and now the Balkan countries, traditional home of troublemaking, are trying to work out a Black Sea Locarno. The Soviet Union and Turkey are expected to join it and it would be strange if they did not as they are about the busiest "joiners" in the treaty fraternity.

In the first years of the League of Nations every treaty registered with the League was an occasion for congratulation. When the number of treaties passed the hundred mark the fervent Leaguers regarded indefinite world peace as all but assured. But, during the past few years, as the danger of war has again become increasingly apparent, the treaties for registering have swamped the League. There were at latest count 3,272.

The Soviets started the rash of treaties of recent years. They began by becoming suspicious of the Japanese intentions on the continent of Asia. They found it expedient to increase the strength of their Siberian armies at the expense of the armies in Russia itself; and, as the situation grew worse in Eastern Siberia, it became necessary to assure peace on their European frontiers.

They hit upon the idea of negotiating ten-year non-aggression pacts, and by the time the Japanese had shown their hand by establishing their power in Manchuria, they were already actively negotiating with Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Poland and Roumania and making overtures to France.

The French were at first suspicious as the Soviets and Germany had been bound to close co-operation by the Treaty of Rapallo and had always shown a warm sympathy for each other. It was also believed that they had a military alliance, and it was, in any event, regarded as certain that they had a "general staff" understanding such as had existed between France and Poland ever since General Weygand went to Warsaw the summer of 1920 and showed the Polish general staff how to break the Soviet offensive against Warsaw.

Gradually and patiently, however, the Soviets built up the treaty of non-

THE BONDED DEBT

ONE of the many necessary requirements, if a community's tax rate is to be kept down to the lowest possible minimum, is that the interest-bearing debt be paid off as rapidly as it falls due. These bonded debts are incurred in the first place, of course, only to acquire or carry out permanent public improvements.

Out of Bristol Borough's 11 bond issues of the last 22 years that are not yet fully paid off, and which, in their original issues, totalled $455,000, the Borough, on October 20th, this year, had a net bonded debt of only $295,000, or 3.7% of its assessed valuation.

Here is Bristol Borough's bonded indebtedness situation at a glance:

Year of Bond Issue	Amount of Bond Issue	Amount Paid Off*	Amount Outstanding	Purpose of The Bond Issue
1911	$100,000	$53,000	$47,000	To acquire Water Works and Filtration Plant.
1912	63,000	39,000	24,000	Sewage System and Disposal Plant.
1913	9,000	7,000	2,000	Payment of a debt inherited from 1892.
1918	52,000	23,000	29,000	At the time, a patriotic contribution to war purposes by extensions to pumping station and filtration plant to meet the Government's requirements at Harriman (now 6th Ward).
1920	12,000	4,000	8,000	Addition and extensions to water system.
1922	27,000	9,000	18,000	Purchase of water mains, pipes and connections in extension of water supply system; pay indebtedness; installation of fire alarm system.
1926	80,000	12,000	68,000	Extension of water mains, sanitary and storm sewers.
1927	35,000	4,000	31,000	To pay indebtedness incurred in reconstruction and permanent improvement of highways.
1928	44,000	4,000	40,000	Demolition of old and construction of new bridge over canal at Beaver St., and permanent improvement of Radcliffe St., Adams Hollow Creek Bridge to Bristol Township line.
1929	6,000	4,000	2,000	Approaches to bridge at Beaver St. and change of grade and drainage, eastward part of Radcliffe St.
1932	27,000	1,000	26,000	Underpass at Green Lane, sewer, etc.
* As of October 20th, 1933.
$455,000 $160,000 $295,000

Business methods applied to business problems by a business-like Borough government! Permanent improvements, whose costs are spread out over a period of years, steadily liquidated without any default which would result in unnecessary interest charges!

That's why Borough Council, in fixing the 1933 tax rate, had to add to the 9.88 mills for general purposes only 3.62 mills for interest and sinking fund charges on bonded indebtedness, thus making the total Borough tax rate for 1933 only 13 1/2 mills ($1.35 per $100 of assessed valuation), or approximately one-half of the maximum rate permitted by law.

But that is only a part of the story. By various means and channels not wholly confined to bond issues and tax revenue, the Borough has come into possession of permanent improvements and operating equipment whose total replacement value is set at $2,001,000, and against which, as already stated, there is an outstanding bonded indebtedness of only $295,000.

Again, however, that is not the whole story. Toward the paying off of this remaining $295,000, there is now $39,687.05 in the Sinking Funds, so that the net liability, in reality, is only $255,313.

EGG-LAYING CONTEST ENDS; 12 TONS LAID

Final Report Shows 203,401 Eggs in 357-Day Period

OVER 216 EGGS PER HEN

With almost 12 tons of eggs laid by 976 hens, the second Pennsylvania egg laying contest has closed. The final report shows 203,401 eggs during the 357-day period, an average of more than 216 eggs per hen. This is described as three times the performance of the average farm hen.

Every egg laid at the contest was weighed and points credited according to this weight.

A remarkable feature of the contest, Secretary of Agriculture John A. McSparran points out, is that the eggs laid average two ounces each which is the standard weight necessary for eggs to bring premium prices on the market.

In thirteen of the twenty highest pens, the average egg weight was considerably above the two-ounce standard. Furthermore, twenty-three of the twenty-six hens which received a

ILLEGAL TRAIN RIDERS

Illegal train riding or "riding the rods" had been virtually abolished throughout the United States when the depression struck and the jobless struck out. It is a practice easily controlled when people can afford to pay their way and the railroads can afford to adequately police their yards and lines. At times when there is no affording anything the railroads are at the mercy of the transients.

The American Railway Association estimates at 500,000 the number of men, boys and women hopping freights. Upwards of 200 have been counted on a single train. Their very numbers preclude any effective steps by the railroads.

When the railroad managements speak of this as a perplexing problem they are not thinking of lost passenger fares but of the danger to their employees, equipment, passengers and freight as well as the danger to the train riders. Hundreds of illegal train riders are dying or being maimed in train wrecks and other accidents on railroad property. They are being killed by low bridges, by falling between cars or while boarding or leaving trains and in other ways.

Wrecks are being laid to illegal riders who tamper with connections or brakes and attacks upon trainmen have been reported, and yet the roads can do little about it. It is a riddle which will find its own answer when the jobless return to work.

WEALTH AND PROSPERITY

Prior to the depression the public accepted as axiomatic the opinions of those economists who pointed out that low unit labor costs combined with high wages assured a maximum degree of productive activity and an accompanying expansion of markets based upon the existence of a prosperous working class. The American people boasted of the rapid pace of industrial mechanization and of the increasing use of machinery on farms and attributed to them our high wage scale and high living standards.

The basic idea of the American economic system was that the faster a country produces goods the greater its prosperity. And it was a basically sound idea as long as the country was spending more money than it was making and baiting new foreign markets with generous loans on bad security.

Behind the nation's present economic policy is the basic idea that the way to prosperity lies in an artificial shortage; that by producing fewer goods the country can increase employment and boost incomes all along the line. This is a complete reversal.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

It was a warmish kind of December and Pop and Uncle Louie were sitting at the table arguing about it. Pop said the seasons were changing around and that before long we'd be having winter when there used to be summer and summer when there used to be winter and that Christmas would be coming on the Fourth of July. Uncle Louie said that was all a lot of tomfoolishness and that even the weather man was in favor of the Republicans because so many people were out of work and it wouldn't be noticed so much if the weather wasn't cold; if Al Smith had got in, it would be below zero.

Then Pop proved his point by reading in the paper about how ship captains said the gulf stream was getting closer all the time and Uncle Louie wanted to know what the gulf stream had to do with it; then Pop pretended Uncle Louie was very dumb because he didn't know that, and the way Pop talked Mom knew he didn't know, either, but you'd never find him admitting anything like that to Uncle Louie. Mom let them go because it was a harmless kind of argument and didn't hurt their digestion and they seemed to like to argue anyhow.

Then the doorbell rang and Mom went to see who it was because the neighbors never bothered to ring the bell or knock, either, but just walked in. Sure enough, it was George Kaufman who owned the Bijou, and he said he just wanted to let Mom know that Tommy's movie, "The Drop Kick," was going to play in his theatre, December 19th and 20th, only George always called it the a-tre. Mom was as proud and happy and excited she didn't know what to say but she asked him in and he said he didn't have time to stop because his wife was waiting in the car, then Mom took so long to thank him that his wife started to blow the horn of the car and George Kaufman left. Nobody liked his wife anyhow; she had come from Chicago and was big-hat and they said George was hen-pecked.

Mom came right in to tell them; it was funny the way they took it. Pop pretended he wasn't excited but he didn't say anything and Mom could see his eyes smiling to himself; then Uncle Louie snuffed and said, how about some java, and said he wasn't going to spend any of his money on such truck and Pop came right back at him and asked him when he ever spent any money on anything. It was kind of a hard thing to say to him and of course Uncle Louie resented it but he didn't have to be such an old gender, Mom thought.

The next day it was in the paper and the news spread around so fast that Mom couldn't show her face anywhere without somebody asking her, wasn't she proud and they said she would be right down in the first row. And from the way Cousin Emmy carried on a person would have thought Tommy was her boy. The neighbor ladies were all excited and talked about it every day at the store, all except Mrs. Farrell who was probably mad because it wasn't her Joie—and Mrs. Flanagan said the only picture Joie could be in was "Mickey Mouse" because that was the way she was so excited inside she could hardly get supper.

Mom couldn't help but laugh at Pop the evening the picture came to town. He was home bright and early at four-thirty from the factory and said the shop had knocked off an hour early, and Mom bet it was Pop who had knocked it off himself. And he went upstairs right away and put on his best suit without being told to, for once, and got out his good shoes and shined them up and was downstairs ready.

The Community Paper and Your Indebtedness To It!

The value of a newspaper to the community in which it circulates is inestimable.

This statement may on the surface appear to be one of bragadocio, but if carefully analyzed by the thoughtful individual, it will prove true.

A community newspaper is continually giving valuable service and support to every activity in the area in which it circulates. It gives publicity to the activities of organizations of a religious, civic, fraternal, social and patriotic nature. This publicity is not charged for, but is given gratuitously and oftentimes but little appreciated. Those benefiting therefrom, in a thoughtless manner, take it for granted that the publicity given is news, when many, many times it is nothing more than free advertising for the various organizations.

Column after column of free publicity for churches, schools, lodges, women's organizations, civic movements, and legitimately established merchants, informing the public that they have taken on a new line of merchandise or in some manner are endeavoring to better cater to the wants of their patrons, are given in every newspaper published today. The publishers of a newspaper do not expect to be paid for such items, and no charge is ever made therefor. Those receiving the benefits of this publicity, however, can and oftentimes do reciprocate in various ways.

The average community newspaper today has three sources of revenue upon which it depends for sustenance: its paid subscription list; the income received from advertising; and the revenue which is derived from its commercial printing department which is a valuable adjunct to practically every community newspaper.

The merchants use the paid advertising columns of the publication, and thereby recompense the publisher. Churches, schools, lodges, women's organizations, and those sponsoring civic movements, can pay their indebtedness to the publication for the free space given by placing orders for whatever commercial printing they may need, thereby showing their gratitude for the aid rendered by the publication.

Those who are interested in the community in which they reside or in which they have formerly resided contribute their share to the community paper by subscribing thereto.

Unless adequate support is received by community publications as herein set forth, the publication cannot prosper and render adequate service to any community.

Are you as an individual or organization doing your part in supporting your community newspaper? Are you using its paid advertising columns; subscribing to the publication; or patronizing its third source of revenue—commercial printing department?

18-0 VICTORY GAINED BY BRISTOL TROJANS

Scoring on the first down that the ball was in their possession, the Bristol Trojans came through at a fast gridiron pace to clip the Clover Green Jackets for an 18-0 victory at Eddington field, Sunday afternoon.

With the full Morgan line-up on the field and bench the Trojans displayed mettle from the first play of the fray, scoring a touchdown on a long forward pass, Leighton to Lake.

Having tossed a Green Jacket on the spot where he received the initial punt, the blue and gold jerseys held for four downs, giving the visitors only an eight yard gain. On their first play, Leighton pulled a fast one, threw a perfect twenty-five yard pass which was received by Lane and carried across the tape for tally.

More than a thousand spectators howled and cheered as the rejuvenated Trojans played fast and furious through the remainder of the first half. Never once during that period did the Clover team advance across the center line into Bristol territory. Two fumbles near the goal line kept the homesteaders from making another possible score. Both misses were recovered by the opposition who immediately booted to safety.

Constantly, Leighton, Crossley and Schwartz hammered at the against successive gains. Aerial attack against the fast Green Jackets proved almost futile and most of the passes were batted down. Only two passes were completed by the Trojans throughout the entire game, the second being thrown by Leighton and received by Schwarz for a 20 yard gain.

All of the Trojan line played hard with McCurry, Sorensen, Conn and Polk doing the outstanding work on the defense.

The second touchdown was made in the third quarter when Leighton received a punt on the fifty yard line and carried it to the thirty. Successive line plunges by Joe Donoghue and Stet Crossley walked the pigskin oval up to the goal line where the latter plunged through the center for a marker.

The score was boosted to 18 in the last quarter in the same manner as in the third. Donoghue received a punt on his own 40 yard line and carried it back twenty yards. Making steady gains up the field the Trojans found themselves again facing the goal posts, gave the oval to Bock who went through on an off tackle play for a tally.

James, Gribley and Ernst played hard for defense while Hughes, Crossley and Leighton constantly cracked the line for steady gains during the second half.

On the first play of the last quarter Schwarz was taken from the game with an injured neck. The injury was one that required the attention of a physician and it is doubtful that the fast backfield man will be seen on the field for several weeks.

The stirring talk rendered the Trojan squad by the coach at a practice last Friday night instilled a new life into the team that spoke for itself in the Trojan-Clover tilt. Throughout the game the boys played hard with every man doing his part. Spectators were thrilled repeatedly by the plays made. Twice Trojan-men intercepted passes which probably proved to be the score jinx of the visitors.

Next Sunday the Trojans will be seen in action again at Eddington field at 2:30 o'clock.

Many local fans are looking forward to promised Trojan-St. Ann's game. It was said that the management will seek an arrangement with the Bristol team to bring the two local teams together, in a tray.

Aid Meeting Turned Into Jolly Hallowe'en Party

Members of Ladies' Aid of Harriman M. E. Church met last evening at the home of Mrs. Walter Cooper, Wilson avenue. An agreeable surprise was in store when Mrs. Cooper's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Paschal, was hostess of the occasion and had preparations made for a Hallowe'en party. Favors were "Mickey Mouse" hats and candy ears of corn. Refreshments were served.

Three new members were admitted to the organization, Mrs. Adrian Bustraam, Mrs. John Bench and Mrs. Cornelius Strauss. Arrangements were made for a doughnut sale November 22nd.

Rosson wanted U. S. C. and 14 points.

Howard gave a derisive snort: "I know what you'll die of," he quelled, "an enlarged heart."

One of the funnier stories of the week is that Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey will go into the beauty shop business. The boys are serious, however. They are looking for a location either on Sunset or Hollywood Boulevard and will do extensive remodeling. Shop is planned to be one of the smartest in the film colony and will have a department of plastic surgery. The idea sprang out of a beauty parlor sequence in the comedian's new picture, "Hip Hips Hooray."

Barring unforeseen developments, Adrienne Ames will get her divorce next Saturday. Just as I told you, Bruce Cabot will fly to Nevada for her and the two will stage an airplane elopement to the town of Carlsbad, New Mexico. The ceremony—they want the union to be as solemn as possible—will be performed in the little church where Bruce went as a boy and from silk hats?
